WHAT IS SURFACE DESIGN SHOW?

Welcome to Surface Design Show 2012 – the home of innovation and inspiration for architects and designers looking for surface solutions for the built environment.

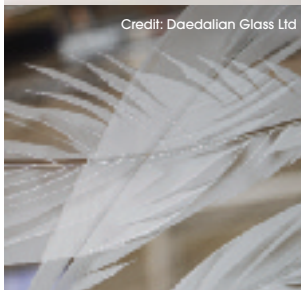

Now in its 9th year, Surface Design Show will once again offer architects and interior designers a unique opportunity to compare the very latest materials, processes and products for use in their projects.

The show brings the industry together to see the latest materials, source new products, engage in educational seminars, network and join the programme of live debates and working portraits.

MATERIAL THINKING: OUR FEATURE AREAS

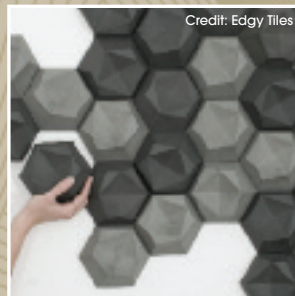

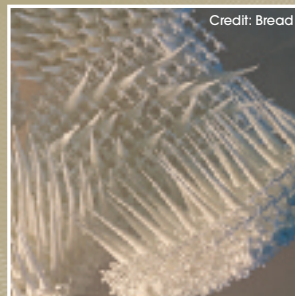

Future Thinking will highlight the thinking that goes into the development and selection of materials for architecture and design. It is a new area for Surface Design Show bringing to London designers and architects with new products, materials and prototypes. Products on display include micro kinetic plastic, 3-dimensional tiles, renewable energy paving stones, invisible pattern algorithms and a wall of light consisting of wool felt and synthetic resin. This feature will be curated by SCIN, the UK sourcing and advisory company for materials.

The Trend Wall presented by Global Color Research, Mix Publications will be based upon Mix Trend's colour forecasting book for Spring/Summer 2013 showing how these seasonal trend stories can be applied into surface design. This year we have the special collaboration of Vanessa Brady from SBID. Real samples and applications will be used to feature the trend story Retreat.

Our forum for new materials being shown by some of the smaller companies in the design industry is The Inspiration Centre. 10 companies will be highlighting their ideas.

Designers for the future are likely to be found on the stands from Colleges and Universities showing the work of their surface design students.
